SUMMARY OF State News.

ROME.

More rain fell Thursday night in Rome than has fallen in the same length of time in thirty years.—Commercial.

CONYERS.

We are pleased to state that sickness has almost entirely left our community. Very few are now afflicted.——The meningitis has made its appearance in Covington.——Every bridge on Yellow River, in Newton county, except the railroad bridge, has been swept away, also the Alcova River are gone.—Examiner.

Briefs.

Long trains are "going out."

An outward bound bark—a dog's.

Little fish have a good notion as to the commencing life—they always begin on a small scale.

A good side-show—a pretty cheek.

Corn-fields that require neither plowing nor sowing—the feet.

MARDI GRAS.

The Constitution's Correspondent Hunting for the Festival in Alabama and Tennessee—Incidents of Travel—His Sufferings, Past, Present, and to Come.

GRAND JUNCTION, TENN., Feb. 22, 1873.

Japhet and your reporter were both earnest seekers—he for a father, and the latter for the famed carnival of Mardi Gras. In obedience to the popular belief that Shrove Tuesday is a bigger man in the Cresent City than anywhere else, thitherward he bent his weary steps last night by stretching his lovely form on a palatial bed of Mr. Dunning's Chattanooga line. Why he went directly north when he wanted to go South was mysterious as the Krewe of Comus.

If the courteous railway people could afford to carry him so many miles over their excellent rails he could afford to ride; and if your readers can afford to read his notes, he can afford to write them. So much of philosophy concerning his roundabout trip via Chattanooga and Grand Junction to the objective point of the period. A newspaper man's time is of no account to himself—if he is on a salary.

RESACA BRIDGE.

There is only one weak spot in the Western and Atlantic Railroad. Along in the night we awoke out of one of those fitful naps that fall to railway travelers even under the best of circumstances. Like the miller when the music of the burr-stones stop, the traveler misses the roll of the wheels. There was a halt and then a low rumble as we crept along at a snail's pace. By resting on the heels and head and holding the breath we reduced our weight to the lowest possible figure. It is not well to curse the bridge that carries one over, a new one will soon replace the temporary structure that a drove of elephants cannot break down. The darkness shut out the magnificent scenery of the route; we were content with the luxurious movement of the coach over the fish-bar track.

THE WESTWARD EXPLANATION.

Two hours of quiet sleep were secured in the car-shed at Chattanooga before Time, in the guise of a black skin and a sleeping-car badge, roused us for the Memphis train. As we sped up among the great hills, the radiant orb of morning began to let loose his beams, disclosing a deal more of dazzling frost than we are accustomed to see down in Georgia. From the hill-scenery we slid into the inundated valley of the Tennessee, between whose stony barriers we wore out several monotonous hours.

THE REMOVAL FEVER.

Among the passengers were a middle aged couple, born and bred among the mountains of East Tennessee. Their children—two little flaxen haired girls—could hardly be said to occupy any seat; they were everywhere, the guest of all, the joy and brightness of the car. The old folks were apparently rational beings; and yet they were taking these little creatures, from the pure waters, bracing air and pleasant friends of their old home, to the chills and fevers of Arkansas! All the pitiful gold they can gather from the black soil of that Radical-ridden State, all the wealth of Crœsus, cannot buy or retain such loveliness of form and feature in a miasmatic air. Men and women of Georgia, think of the little ones before you decide to leave the old State for the far West.

And this reminds us of an incident in the car-shed at Chattanooga. It is as easy to troop backwards as forwards on paper. As we stepped out into the darkness a bully man with a lamp, saluted us thusly: "Have you hands, sir?" Did he take us for one of those men, who under various specious promises are enticing darkeys to grief and sorrow out West? He was big and healthy, and escaped with a whole skin; but, in the face of the testimony that comes back from the deluded victims, we had rather be asked any other question.

RISES TO EXPLAIN.

These notes are made as we go along; and here at Huntsville, let us recall an unjust observation about the Tennessee valley. With such magnificent plantations stretching away to the hazy hills,—every summit in the rolling valley crowned with a specious mansion—leafless through the trees are, and dry the herbage,—we cannot conscientiously let the statement stand in all its nakedness. We bid the lordly stream goodbye at Decatur, where its full banks waved us a magnificent farewell. (No pun intended.)

GRAND JUNCTION

Arrived about 8 o'clock, tired and careless of Mardi Gras, or any other man. It is a great thing, my little boy, to be a reporter,—to pass sleepless nights in crazy railroad cars in which so many predecessors have been immolated, mangled or slaughtered outright—to eat indigestible food and swallow concentrated fragments of torchlight processions—and then turn out at 2 o'clock in the morning for a still longer spell of fatigue, as your reporter must to-morrow. He is a temperance man though, and so you should be. F.

FORSYTH COUNTY.

A Third Destructive Freshet Plays the Deuce in this County.

CUMMING, GA., Feby. —, 1873.

Editors Constitution: Forsyth and adjacent counties have been visited by a third and the most destructive freshet we have had since the great August freshet of 1853. On last Thursday night, 20th inst., from 12 to 3 o'clock A. M., the heaviest rain fell I most ever witnessed, accompanied by heavy thunder and sharp lightning. The creeks overflowed the bottom land, washing away fences, bridges, mill and cotton gin dams.

I learn of fourteen mills and dams in this county which have been carried away or more or less injured by the recent freshets; the bridges across creeks are in almost every instance either washed away or damaged; the land is badly washed and packed, making the prospect rather gloomy for the farmer.

☞ The Boston Pilot says, "the Catholic priests are the only clergy in the land who mind their own business, confining themselves to their own mission of fighting sin and saving souls, while the non-Catholic clergy meddle in politics, ignore or pander to human weakness, and strive to swim with the bubble-public."

Fiat Justitia.

Messrs Editors Constitution: We argue with a writer, appearing in your columns over the very fit signature which heads this article, that the very extraordinary relations which existed between the Governor and the Senate during the late session of the General Assembly, cannot here fail to attract general attention." "Fiat Justitia" has arrived at the tardy conclusion, "that somebody has been greatly at fault, that improper exhibitions have been made in high places, and it is due to the public that it should be informed of the fact that it may be enabled to enter a correct judgment against the offending party." We thank him for opening the door, and inviting inquiry and revelation. As his signature implies an apparent desire that justice should be done we will endeavor to locate these "great faults" and "improper exhibitions" that "somebody" has been guilty of.

The Government has become so accustomed to receive apparent marks of respect and esteem from successful applicants, that if in the following lines, ought save obsequiousness should escape me, I fear this henchman will consider it as a traduction of his master's established character, and possibly as an insult to his understanding.

A distribution by lot of the judicial offices lately filled would have pleased the bar and people better than the course adopted; and would have left the Governor no memories of violated honor. He thus might have chosen wisely, through accident, when he has so signally failed in the sworn use of discretion.

"Fiat Justitia" asks: "On what grounds did the Senate base its action?" and first recurs to the law.

This is a wise provision of the Constitution which gives to the Senate the unrestricted power to reject appointments of the Governor. Forty-four men are less easily influenced by an applicant than one. The combined discretion of the Senate is, probably, as great, if not greater than that of one man and his several secretaries, even though that man be a Governor. Even the simple understanding of "Fiat Justitia," may be strained to comprehend this. * * * There can be no argument as to whether the Senate's course was legal; for, as we have just said, the Senate is given the unqualified right to reject any and all of the Governor's appointments, whenever, in their judgment, such rejection is proper. As to whether the exercise of this constitutional right in the cases cited by "Fiat Justitia," was actuated by petty spite and malice at the expense of Senatorial dignity, I will leave the Senators and this gubernatorial advocate to decide. Those Senators are amply able to defend their action, and I call upon them, by the omnipotence of honesty, to do it. Let the people know the character of their Governor. As, however, "Fiat Justitia" cries out "let justice be done," we will venture to offer a suggestion or two that may aid the consummation of his prayers.

As to the ejection of Messrs. Garrard and Tompkins, we are not informed upon what ground the Senate based its action. We are willing to accept the decision of forty-four unbiased men, in preference to that of one man, even the Governor.

This henchman has invaded the privacy of an executive session to drag forth the culprits, who were guilty of the high crime of voting against the confirmation of the Hon. R. P. Trippe. What if the walls of the executive office could tell their tale! But this most pulsant writer asks, with a candor that may have led some one to suppose he expected an answer: "What were the motives which impelled these gentlemen to cast their votes in the negative?"

We will do this unknown friend the justice to suppose him sincere, and the charity to presume him ignorant. What if the appointing power had said to a Senator in words that displays both the graces of his language and the accomplishments of his manner, "I'll be d—d if I'll appoint any man to the Supreme Court Bench who is opposed to the relief law!" Would that not amply explain the Senator's action? Take that home, Georgians. You who have rights of property to be adjudicated before this final arbitrator. Know that the decision was made before the Judge was appointed. If this be true, Governor Smith is but perpetuating the policy of the Radical party. Think of that, Democrats. Sanction this, and it will plead as a precedent under every succeeding administration. If the policy of the Supreme Court is to be determined before the appointment of the Judges, why the mockery of a trial? And if the policy as to decisions upon rights of property is to be determined upon before the case arise, why not as to the rights of liberty and life?

And if the Supreme Court Judgeships are to be thus degraded, why not those of the Superior Court and the Solicitor Generalships? Who shall fix the limit? And with questions thus prejudged, and rights thus predetermined who will appeal to the Courts? And with the Courts thus virtually closed, will not each man become the executioner of his own right and the avenger of his own wrong.

I will not harass "Fiat Justitia's" master with interrogatories, lest I ask him if it is safe in the Governor to dismiss those qualities which sustain the character of a private citizen? and beg that he tender his reply to a one armed ex-Confederate soldier, and to a venerable octogenarian. I might beg him that inasmuch as all of Georgia's honor-citizens have not been Governors, that he would graciously pardon that stupidity which applies a stronger term than "policy" to contradictory statements, and promises unfulfilled.

I again call upon the Senators to lay before an honest people the facts upon which their action was based.

In conclusion I will say with Junius (to whom I am indebted largely—let this be full acknowledgement) that "if any coarse expressions have escaped me, I will admit that they are improper for me to make use of; but I see no reason to acknowledge that they have been improperly applied."

BARTOW.

EFFECT OF COAL ON IRON AND STEEL RAILS.—Some interesting experiments have been made in England and Sweden under the supervision of eminent scientists, relative to the effect which the cold weather exerts upon the rails of iron and steel which are used for railroads. Contrary to the popular impressions, it was found that, when the thermometer is at zero, the iron and steel are about three per cent. stronger, and capable of that proportion more of weight, than at sixty degrees Fahrenheit, or ordinary temperature. The reason assigned for the more frequent snapping of rails in the cold season is that they lie embedded in frozen ground, and the impact of the weight on the rails and their connections is increased by this rigid support. These experiments may possibly lead, at some future time, to some means of prevention of this frequent cause of railway disaster.

☞ The Bank of England covers five acres of ground and employs nine hundred clerks, and should a clerk be too old for service, he is discharged on half pay for life. There are no windows on the street. Light is admitted through open courts; no mob could take the bank, therefore, without cannon to batter the immense walls. The clock in the center of the bank has fifty dials attached to it. Large cisterns are sunk in the court, and engines in perfect order are always in readiness in case of fire. The band was incorporated in 1694. Capital £18,000,000, or $90,000,000.

☞ A polite conductor on the Newark railroad recently carried the strong-minded Anna Dickinson, on his back, through the mud, from his train to a street car, in Jersey City. The charming Anna is described as having covered her face with her veil to hide her blushes, and putting her arms about the happy conductor's neck, was safely landed at a street car, in time to fulfill a lecture engagement in another part of the city. She probably liked her trip better than the conductor's wife.

☞ Miss Neilson is reported as liking America so well that she is coming back next season; going to California in September, to return to New York in December. She begins "to get very tired of Juliet. I have played it only six hundred and eighteen times, and with about two hundred fewers of ages all the way from eighteen to fifty, and with women Romeos, too, whom I can't say that I appreciate."

A WORD ABOUT THE NAVY.

Something for the President.

Editors Constitution: President Grant, they say, is coming South, accompanied by members of the Cabinet and other distinguished citizens, consisting mainly of members of Congress. This brilliant array will probably come to Atlanta in a train of Pullman's Palace Cars. In that event, with the assistance of Allston and Willingham, see to it that the time of the visit is not consumed in fruitless parade. Tell Mr. Grant he is welcome to Georgia. That, for the last several years—seeming long to us because of the oppressions which have filled them—Presidents have been scarcer in this climate than adventurers. From this go right on and give him plain and manful expressions of thought upon the material interests of the country, which are now, through neglect, so languishing.

Let me give you a suggestion produced by one of your own articles. Tell him that in your paper of 21st inst. you inserted an announcement that the great Midland Railway Company had made a contract with the Pullman Palace Car Company for the equipment of their road with American drawing-room and sleeping coaches—and that you went into ecstacies over it. The President will like this. The fact, of itself, is a proud thing for Americans. But tell him one of your country cousins read the article and that he wrote to you, at once, that you were taking on too largely. That the announcement was merely matter for congratulation and not for vainglorious rapture, because these very palace cars will have to cross the Atlantic in English bottoms, and that, too, because the United States is without an adequate navy.

He will probably sit silent and smoke to quiet his nerves when you tell him this. The Secretary of the Navy (the little remnant remaining) will get mad, and some of the distinguished gentlemen in his company may ask how you know it? But you may safely go on and say the fact is so patent that intelligent American citizens generally feel grieved at it. That this same country cousin said he was lately in New York and saw twelve lines of magnificent steamers there to carry Americans across the "big ferry," and not one of their number was American.

As far back as 1870 the ship-builders told Mr. Grant's congressmen that American vessels were being driven from the seas, and that rapid decadence had fallen upon our national tonnage. That, with the most skillful shipbuilders on earth idle in our midst, we had already fallen far behind England and France, and had even come to the mortifying extremity of having a little Dutch principality carrying our passengers and products for us. Yes, that even our coastmarine navy was dwindling, and Canadians were filling the great lakes with their crafts, whilst our own ship-yards were silent, and foundries deserted.

It is a fact that foreign vessels are now receiving the freights from the eastern termini of our Transcontinental Railways, and if American policy and practice is not changed they will take the freights from our Pacific coast to Japan and China and the East Indies. The English now have splendid steamers flying all waters, more than 120 of which do the carrying trade of New York, whilst we only have 2 insignificant, crippled lines along the coast to Brazil and California.

If the Secretary of the remaining remnant of the navy or any of his distinguished companions should say, we of the South are the cause of this; that the terrible Alabama ruined the national navy, tell Mr. Grant that each of the 120 English steamers that frequent the harbor of New York is swifter and, with slight alterations, can be made better suited to the purposes of naval warfare than the Alabama. If he does not know it, let him ask Admiral Porter, and he will corroborate the statement. In this connection too, you may safely say, that so exclusively are our ports in the grasp of the English that intelligent New Yorkers have been heard to say, if they wanted to find the pilot who best knew New York harbor they would go to England for him. Then point Mr. Grant to the Clyde musical with the hum of machinery and the hammer and saw of the cheerful citizen, while Wilmington, and Chester, and Brooklyn exhibit cold furnaces and deserted ship-yards; and the coasts of Maine and Georgia and Florida and California with forests standing thick with the best ship timbers on earth, upon every passing breeze, send mournful reproaches to Washington. Instead of the Credit Mobilier incubus upon our Pacific Railways, the country is entitled by this time to have had lines of fast, safe steamers, competing with England and France and Germany, extending their through freights from Hong Kong and Jeddo to London and Paris. All this, and more, we would have had, if, instead of fanning the slumbering embers of unfortunate discord with one hand, and plundering with the other, Congressmen had all been earnestly engaged in performing their duties in the past. And unless Mr. Grant and his distinguished companions will learn, whilst they are amongst us, that we are not provinces but States, and that our people are not aliens but Americans. Unless they are enabled, when they go back, to change the policy and conduct of the ruling powers so as to invigorate the material enterprises of the country by attention in the place of neglect, it is not only possible but probable that we of the United States will become, in peace, pronounced tributaries to other nations, and, in war, comparatively helpless.

You know, Mr. Avery, a great deal better than I do about these matters. If you have not got time yourself to improve the hints offered ask Mr. Willingham to fix up something. YOUR COUNTRY COUSIN.

TO THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, February 25.—During the Quebec election a riot of half an hour's duration took place, during which time two were killed and several fatally wounded. The polling takes place on Monday, when a renewal of the fight is expected.

The Louisiana question is up. Trumbull is making a terribly denunciatory speech. The question comes up in peculiar manner not involving points at issue, but under the agricultural college bill. The question being that no money should be given to Louisiana to be held by an usurping government. The discussion will be long, and at present involves Kellogg's Government, which Carpenter asserts and Morton admits could not stand five hours without Federal support, but the discussion will lead to no positive legislation, it is simply a declaration, and the issue is whether Louisiana shall be stricken from the States to which college money is given.

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, February 25.—It is understood that the very Rev. Wm. Quinn has been appointed to the office of Vicar General of the Arch Diocese of New York, to supply the vacancy caused by the death of the very Rev. Doctor Storrs. Very Rev. Father Preston remains Chancellor of Diocese with the title and powers of Vicar General in all matters pertaining to chancery.

A London special of the 24th says an agreement has been made between the Duke de Montpensier and the adherents of Queen Isabella to place Prince Alphonso on the throne of Spain; the Duke to be Regent during the minority of Prince Alphonso, and the latter to marry the youngest daughter of the Duke.

Isabella accepts the programme and two important parties, therefore will act together in the present Spanish crisis.

Navigation on East River past "Hellgate" is suspended to sailing crafts.

South Carolina News.

Mr. Lawrence Barrett not only drew fine audiences in Charleston, but so pleased the citizens, that he has been invited to extend his engagement for a few days.

Washington's birthday was celebrated in Charleston by the Washington Light Infantry and other military organizations. A grand ovation was delivered by Hon. W. D. Porter.

THE undersigned now own the plates of the POPULAR SERIES; and as they are the only Purely Southern School Books offered in the market, we submit that it is to the interest of Teachers to patronize them in the very best style.

Very LIBERAL Specimen copies sent for examination.

Prof. Orr, the Superintendent of Education to Georgia, says of them:

*Messrs. J. W. Burke & Co., Macon, Ga.—*GENTLEMEN: I have given to the Sterling Series of School Books, which you have had the kindness to leave with me, such examination as the limited amount of leisure at my command has allowed. With several books of the series I was already familiar, having added greatly to the interest of several public and private schools, while engaged in active school work, by selections from their pages. While there ought not to be anything objectionably sectional in our school literature, I must be allowed to say that it is to the friends of both pleasure and pride that I find in the pages of these books so liberal a recognition of Southern talent. I am glad, too, to learn that their publication is to be transferred to our own State. Southern talent in letters will be encouraged by patronizing, so far as possible, every branch of the supply of all our wants, both material and mental, upon our own soil. I will only add that I myself am pleased to see the books extensively used.

Respectfully yours,
GUSTAVUS J. ORR,
State School Commissioner.

Home-Made Music.

Dalton, up in North Georgia, really nestling in picturesque hills, has a charming young lady, unusually gifted in music, who is a composer of merit, though not out of her teens.

We have before us a lively, dashing, instrumental piece for the piano, bearing the imprimation of the best musical publishing house, North. The piece is called "Blade O' Grass Galop," and the fair and promising young composer is Miss Gertrude Manley, of Dalton.

We also have an elaborate piece from the publishing house of Wm. A. Pond & Co., 547 Broadway. It is called "Wicked Sixteen." The words are by Miss Sallie A. Brock, adapted by our townswoman Mrs. Maria Jourdan Westmoreland, author of Heart Hungry and Clifford Troup.

Judge David Irwin Favors an Investigation of the Bond Matter.

We give elsewhere a characteristic letter from that honored citizen of Georgia, Judge David Irwin, on the bond matter.

He concurs with THE CONSTITUTION that the subject is one of vast importance, not to be hastily determined, but to be fully investigated, discussed and understood, and carefully decided.

While it is admitted that the bonds are illegal, yet there may be equities that Georgia cannot in honor ignore, and to ignore which may leave a stain on her honor.

Judge Irwin represents a class of men in Georgia that constitute its most solid and influential element. This class will be found to be largely occupying his position on the bond question. Deliberate and careful upon all public matters they appreciate the necessity of impartially investigating and justly deciding claims against our great State.

To either accept or reject without investigation would be equally unwise. The former would be unjust to ourselves, the latter to our claimants.

The report of the bond committee did not settle the matters sought by the investigation of the bond settlement. It did settle the illegality of the bonds declared fraudulent, and the validity of the good ones. It did not settle the equities connected with the void bonds, and it necessarily could not. While the validity of the bonds was unsettled, their equities could not be touched. The recognition of validity carried all equities with it. But the existence of equities could only come up for inquiry on the basis of the established invalidity of the bonds. Parties contending for the integrity of their whole bonds could not and would not submit the half case involved in the simple matter of equities, for fear of endangering the verdict on the bonds themselves. And the State, while fighting the legality of certain securities, which her violated laws demanded to be condemned, could not complicate that issue with another request upon the settlement of the first.

The matter of legality has been settled. The question of equities now comes up, and should be as closely sifted. Those who would bar an investigation reck little of what is due to the honor of a great and sovereign commonwealth. The same public virtue and intelligence that could be trusted to decide the great question of the legality of the bonds can be as safely trusted to investigate and decide the smaller, but hardly less important question of their equities. And when men talk of closing the investigation and shutting down inquiry for fear that a wrong verdict will be corruptly obtained, they insult the people of Georgia, and present the very strongest of all pleas for pushing the investigation to see who are so weak that they can't be trusted to look into and pass upon matters involving the honor and interest of the State.

It will indeed be a lamentable condition of things when the public virtue and intelligence of so low that it cannot be trusted to discuss and decide any public question, and when the only safeguard against public folly or corruption will be the constitutional prohibition that prevents consideration of a subject. We should, indeed, despair of the State if its people had thus degenerated.

What would have been the result if Georgia had declared the fraudulent bonds of Bullock illegal without an inquiry, and a fair hearing to all claimants?

Let her not now commit the error of rejecting the equities of bonds without investigation and a fair showing to those claiming to be innocent holders. We were for investigation then. We are for it now. We doubted the ability of the world's gold to bribe a dishonest decision then. We have the same faith in Georgia honesty now. We believe that Uncle's money would fail to obtain the recognition of a single void bond then. We believe that the combined capitalists of the world will equally fail to get the recognition of a solitary improper equity now.

GEORGIA BONDS.

Judge David Irwin thinks the Bond Question Due to be Fully Discussed and Understood.

MARIETTA, GEORGIA, February 16, 1873.

THERE MAY BE EQUITIES BEHIND SETTLEMENT.

Messrs. Avery and Clark, Atlanta, Ga:

GENTLEMEN—Your note of the 13th instant, was not received by me until to-day. You ask my opinion on the bond question now under discussion. This is a question of vast importance, which should not be hastily determined. It should be considered calmly and free from all prejudice. To do this, in my judgment, we should delay any action until the whole subject is fully discussed and understood; still, I think the interest of the State, as well as the bondholders demand that an investigation of this matter should be had, and a final disposition of this vexed question be made within a reasonable time. It is claimed, and, I believe, pretty generally admitted, that a large amount, if not all, of these disputed bonds were issued, and disposed of, and indorsements made on the bonds of several railroad companies by the agents of the State without authority, and in violation of law. If this is true, bonds so issued or so indorsed are null and void and ought not to be paid. Still there may be equities existing between the State of Georgia and the bondholders, which ought to be investigated—for instance, if these bonds were hypothecated as a security for money borrowed by her legal agents who were authorized to borrow money for the use of the State, on her credit, it would seem that the State is morally bound to pay the amount of money so borrowed by her agent, with legal interest thereon, though the security given was void, and the party lending would not be bound to see to a proper application of the money so loaned, unless he had notice of the fraud. How far this legal proposition may apply to this case, of course, would depend upon the facts disclosed by proof. Inasmuch as a State cannot be sued without her consent, it may be asked how this investigation can be had? I answer by the Legislature, or by the consent of the State—it may be before the Courts, or by arbitration. I repeat, that in my judgment, this whole matter ought to be investigated and finally disposed of within a reasonable time. For many reasons which I could give, I can't tell how far the credit of the State may have been affected by this transaction, but I am quite sure it has not been improved.

In conclusion, I trust that nothing will be done which will impair the honor and credit of our State, and that justice will be done to all parties concerned.

Please excuse the hasty manner in which I have written. With great respect,

Your obedient servant, DAVID IRWIN.

DECISIONS

SUPREME COURT OF GEORGIA.

Delivered at Atlanta, February 25, 1873.

REPORTED EXPRESSLY FOR THE CONSTITUTION BY HENRY JACKSON, SUPREME COURT REPORTER.

Elisabeth Cain et al. vs. T. M. Furlow et al. Dismissed of bill, from Sumter.

WARNER, C. J.

The complainants filed their bill against the defendants, alleging that the defendants are tenants in common with them, and are in possession of lot number 175 in the 27th district of Sumter county on which a considerable portion of the town of Americus is located, and prayed for a sale of the premises and for a partition of the proceeds of the sale thereof. The defendants demurred to the complainants bill for want of equity, and also filed a special plea in bar of the complainants' right to the relief sought by their bill. The Court sustained the demurrer and plea, and dismissed the bill and complainants excepted. The defendants allege in their plea that they have a good prescriptive right to the land sued for; that they have been in the peaceable and uninterrupted enjoyment, use and possession of the said land for more than seven years prior to the institution of said suit, under color of title and claim of right, bona fide claiming the same without notice of the said complainants' pretended claim, or of any defect in their title, nor do they believe that the said complainants have any legal right to the same or to the mesne profits thereof, which plea is certified to under oath. On the hearing in the Court below the truth of the plea was not disputed, but it is insisted here that as the record shows that one Harrison who purchased only a part interest in the lot of land and afterwards took possession of the entire lot and dividedit into town lots which were sold by him from time to time to the defendants, who it is claimed are tenants in common with the complainants, and being so, the statute did not run in their favor against the complainants. The defendants claim under Harrison's deed and the possession of the defendants under Harrison's deed was adverse to the complainants and the statute run in their favor as against them. Horne et al. vs. Howell, decided at the last term of the Court, not yet reported. It is also insisted that inasmuch as it is alleged in the bill, and admitted by the demurrer thereto, that Harrison purchased one-ninth undivided part of said land at sheriff's sale, as the property of one Cain, who derived his title to the land in right of his wife Elizabeth Cain, one of the complainants, that she is not now barred from asserting the title to the land under, or through any of the parties to it, he did not claim any title to the land under the parties to that deed, either as a privy in law or as a privy in estate, but under a title wholly independent of them. The recitals in a deed only bind the parties thereto and their privies, but not strangers. On the statement of facts contained in the record, the verdict for the defendant was right, and there was no error in overruling the motion for a new trial.

It is not disputed that the defendant had been in possession of the land more than seven years under color of paper title and claim of right, but assuming that the heirs of Andrew Lamar, who were minors, voluntarily purchased a good title to the land under the deed of 1866 after the statute had commenced to run in favor of the defendant was such voluntary purchase by them of the land, such a voluntary undertaking of disability on their part, as would cause the statute to cease to operate in their favor during their minority under the 3678th section of the Code, or would the statute continue to run against them notwithstanding their minority? In other words, does the voluntary purchase of a tract of land by a minor after the statute has commenced to run, take the case out of the general rule, as provided by section 2644 of the Code, that no prescription works against the rights of a minor during infancy—Query?

Let the judgment of the Court below be affirmed.

Vason & Davis, for plaintiffs in error.

F. H. Harper, W. A. Hawkins, Phil Cook, Clark & Goss, for defendants.

Martin G. Brady vs. The State. Misdemeanor, from Terrell.

WARNER, C. J.

The defendant was indicted for a misdemeanor under the 4306th section of the Code, and charged with having used obscene and vulgar language in the presence of a female without provocation. On the trial the defendant was found guilty. A motion was made for a new trial on the grounds set forth in the record, which was overruled by the Court, and the defendant excepted. There was no error in overruling the motion for a continuance. The fact that the defendant expected to prove by the absent witness that the female, in whose presence the obscene and vulgar words were alleged to have been spoken, was at one time pregnant and absented herself from the community in which she lived, on that account, did not constitute any legal defence to the defendant under the law for using obscene and vulgar language in her presence without any provocation, and her condition and absence from the community, did not constitute such provocation. The words used by the defendant, as charged in the indictment, and proved on the trial, are admitted to have been quite obscene and vulgar enough to shock the moral sensibilities of all decent people, but it is said the words were not used in the presence of the female, as contemplated by the statute. The evidence is that the female in whose presence the words are alleged to have been used, resided in a house close to defendant, just across the street, in the same village, and that the night the words were used the female was at the house of a neighbor, about one hundred and fifty yards distant from defendant's house. Whether defendant knew she was absent from her own house at the time, does not appear; but he was standing in the piazza of his own house, and spoke the words loud enough for the female to hear them at the house of her neighbor, and were addressed to the female by name, and called her, "You [illegible] old," etc., etc. She heard the words distinctly, and it would seem, from the fact that the words were addressed to her by name, that the defendant intended and expected she should hear them. At any rate she did hear them, and in our judgement, when obscene and vulgar words are used in the hearing of a female, the words are used in the presence of a female, as contemplated by the statute, the more especially when the obscene and vulgar words are addressed to that female, by name. Let the judgment of the Court below be affirmed.

F. M. Harper, represented by Clarke and Goss; W. A. Hawkins; C. B. Wooten for plaintiff in error.

Jas. P. Fiewellen, Solicitor General; Lyon & Irvin, for the State.

O. P. Beall & B. J. Smith vs. F. B. Morris & Smith Davenport. Ejectment from Randolph.

McCAY, J.

Whilst, as a general rule it is true that one who goes into possession of land under a contract of purchase, cannot, at law, dispute the title of his vendor so long as his possession is undisturbed, yet if the vendor himself parts with the title, or if it be sold under execution against him, the vendee may, in good faith, attorn to the purchaser, and in an action of ejectment by the vendor against the vendee, the vendee may, though the purchase money is still unpaid, show such sale and attornment as a defence to the action.

Judgment reversed.

H. Fielder, Hood & Kiddoo, for plaintiffs in error.

Wooten & Hoyle, for defendants.

L. D. Monroe & E. L. Douglass, vs. Richard V. Carter. Forcible entry, and Certiorari, from Randolph.

McCAY, J.

When there was a trial before a jury, on a warrant for forcible entry and detainer, and the entry and force by the defendant was admitted, but it was set up that the plaintiff was holding as the tenant of the defendants, and there was evidence upon both sides upon the point—in the main by the parties themselves as witnesses, and the jury found for the plaintiff, under a charge of the Court telling them that the case turned upon the nature of the plaintiff's holding, whether in his own right or as tenant and the jury found for the plaintiff, this Court will not overrule the Court below, in refusing to order a new trial unless the verdict be most manifestly contrary to the evidence.

Judgment affirmed.

E. L. Douglass, H. Fielder, for plaintiff in error.

Hood and Kiddoo, for defendant.

D. W. Spence and Oliver S. Porter vs. E. Steadman. Bill for relief and injunction, from Newton.

McCAY, J.

E. Steadman filed his bill against D. W. Spence and O. S. Porter alleging in substance that in June, 1871, he was the owner of a large property in Newton county worth $100,000, consisting of land on which was a cotton factory; that he was considerably in debt; that his debts were pressing and he was desirous to raise money; that with this view he made a written proposal to defendants to sell them his property at fifty thousand dollars, forty thousand to be used for paying his debts and ten thousand to remain in defendants hands to be invested in new machinery under his order; this written proposal stipulated that cotemporaneous with the sale defendants were to give a bond to resell him the property at the end of 1872 for fifty thousand dollars cash, and to lease it to him for 1872, for $10,000 rent, payable quarterly, with the further stipulation that if he paid the rent promptly, he was to have the right to keep the property under lease, on the same terms, for 1873, and that the right to rebuy, in that event, was to be extended. It was further stipulated that plaintiff was to keep the property insured for $30,000, during the lease. The bill stated that the defendants accepted the proposition, and that on the—day of September, a deed, lease and bond were executed as proposed—the deed expressing forty thousand dollars as consideration—that the ten thousand dollars was not paid over to the complainant, but was left with defendants to be paid to certain judgments, etc., and other claims pressing complainant.

The bill further charged that the whole scheme was a mutual device to loan and borrow money at illegal interest, and avoid the usury laws; that such was the intention of complainant, and that defendants participated in this purpose and intent.

The bill further charged, that defendants had not paid the money to his debts, as they agreed to do; that they had bought up some of them, had other judgments transferred to themselves, and were about to levy them on his other property.

The bill further charged that the rent was fixed at $10,000, because that was the amount of the interest agreed upon for $350,000 to wit: twenty per cent. The bill further charged that having determined not to increase the machinery as contemplated, he had never ordered it and that the ten thousand dollars had never been advanced by defendants as contemplated. The bill also showed that he had paid eight thousand dollars rent for 1872, to-wit: 20 per cent on $40,000, but that defendants claimed the whole ten thousand, and were threatening to eject him as a tenant holding over unless he paid the whole ten thousand, as well as insisting that his right to rebuy or lease for another year and then rebuy, was dependent on his payment of the whole of the said ten thousand dollars rent each year promptly. The bill then prayed that an account be had between them of the debt contracted, the usury and the payment, and offered to pay what might be found due by the bill. The bill also prayed that the defendants might be enjoined from ejecting him and from levying any fi fas defendants might control on any of the complainant's property, and application was made to the Judge for an injunction until the final hearing. The Judge called on defendants to show cause, and they answered.

The answers admitted the written offer of complainant to sell, lease and rebuy, but positively denied that there was any agreement or understanding in any way that it was a loan of money. That it was a positive sale, just as stated in the deed, lease and bond and no more or no less, denied that there was any intent expressed or understood that it was a loan or a device to evade the usury laws. The answer denied that the money was not paid, but set up that either on the day of the transaction or soon afterward they had fully paid the forty thousand dollars, dollar for dollar, to the complainants' debts, under his direction, and according to the agreement at the time. That they had paid the debts dollar for dollar, and paid only such debts as plaintiff had directed, and that such debts and judgments had been settled, (not transferred to them) and turned over as settled by them to the complainant, and they set forth these payments, receipts, etc., in detail. They admitted that they had now in their control certain judgments against complainant, but stated that they had bought them with their own funds, and to protect their property thus purchased, and insisted that they had a right to collect them from complainant's other property. They admitted that they had never advanced the ten thousand dollars for the new machinery, but said they had been ready to do it, but the complainant had never asked for it by ordering the machinery. They denied that the property was worth $100,000, but insisted that it was worth little, if any, more than forty thousand dollars. They offered several affidavits, especially that of the scrivener who wrote the papers sustaining the answers, as to the fact that a sale, and not a mortgage or security, was intended. The complainant also filed affidavits in aid of his charge, as to the value of the property, as well as to some sayings of the defendants, to the fact, that they did not want the property but only to get good returns for their money and be safe. The Judge granted the injunction as prayed, and the defendandants excepted.

Under the Act of 1870, allowing judgments granting and refusing injunctions to be brought to this Court by bill of exceptions immediately, nothing comes but the judgment granting or refusing the injunction. We cannot act upon any demurrer to the bill, nor on the merits of the case as it may finally be made before the jury or before us. The only question is, was the injunction properly granted or refused?

1. In this case, we think under the answers and the incontestible facts of the case, the Judge erred in enjoining the executions. They and the connection of the defendants with them, had nothing whatever to do with the controversy growing out of the transaction in September, 1871. The defendants had a perfect right to buy them, and so far as appears by anything in these proceedings they have a right to collect them.

2. It is a well settled rule of law, that parties may if they please, really and truly, sell property for a consideration actually passing and at the same time, secure the right to repurchase it at a future time for an agreed price, and if this be really the intent of the parties, the law will enforce it. It is also true that the difference between such a transaction and a mortgage is often a very nice one, and that the Courts will scrutinize the matter very closely to discover, whether, there was in fact any thing more intended, than, to provide a security for money due, or advanced at the time, and all the facts will be looked to in search of the truth of the case.

The great cardinal rule for testing the intent seems to be, whether or not the relation of debtor and creditor was intended to exist between the parties—whether the property was taken in satisfaction and discharge of the sum due or advanced; or whether, notwithstanding the words of the conveyance, the relation of debtor and creditor was still to exist, to-wit: the right of the one to demand and the obligation of the other to pay. Hilliard on Mortgages, 1 vol. 62, 9th Ga. Under this rule, we think, from the bill and answers, that the transaction begun in June, 1871, by the complainants' offer, and accepted and acted on by both in September, 1871, as evidenced by the complainant's proposal, the defendants' acceptance, and the deed, lease, bond and payments furnish, so far as appears from the face of the papers, or from any facts appearing at the hearing, taking the answers of the defendants as evidence, was a contract of sale, lease and agreement to permit the complainant to rebuy, and not a loan of money, and scheme to evade the usury laws; at least, that under the uncontradicted answers of the defendants, there was error in the Judge to have considered the charges of the bill as far made out, as to justify the injunction on that ground. What may be the truth of the case, as it may be made out at the trial, before a jury, is not now the question.

3. As it is admitted on all hands that the ten thousand dollars to be advanced for machinery has never in fact been advanced, and as it is perfectly apparent that this ten thousand dollars was in the minds of the parties in fixing the amount to be paid in the re-purchase, and as from the bill, answers and other facts in the bill and papers, before the Court there is strong reason to believe that the rent was fixed at ten thousand instead of eight, in view of the expectation of all parties that this advance would be made, and the complainant get the benefit of it under his lease, and as it is admitted that the complainant has paid the $8,000 for the rent of 1872, according to his construction of the amount really intended by the contract; we are of the opinion that the facts, as they appear by the bill and answers, and by the proposition, lease and bond, justify the Court in considering the complainant to have made out such a prima facie case of compliance with the real intent of the lease as to authorize an injunction against his eviction for his failure to pay the $10,000, instead of $8,000 for the rent of 1872, and that the injunction against his eviction should be continued, until the 1st., of January 1874, provided he keep the property insured as agreed upon and promptly pay eight thousand dollars rent for 1873, in quarterly payments on the 1st. of April, July and October and the 31st. of December 1873 with the right to rebuy at the end of 1873 as provided in the lease, leaving the real truth of the amount of the rent for 1872 and 1873 as well as, whether, the transaction of September 1871, was a mortgage or sale—the question of usury and the other questions made, to be finally settled by the jury on the trial.

Judgment reversed with instructions.

J. J. Floyd, for plaintiffs in error.

Clarke & Pace, B. H. Hill, & Sons, Speer & Stewart for defendant.

McCAY, J. did not preside in the following case on account of relationship to one of the parties.

W. Allison vs. J. W. Whitally & Co. Injunction, from Sumter.

TRIPPE, J.

A defendant in a mortgage fi. fa., issued on a foreclosure of a mortgage on per sonal property, who desires to contest the amount due on the grounds that that there is usury in the debt, and that he is entitled to have the claim reduced or decreed to be satisfied and paid, from the fact that he had leased to his creditors, (plaintiffs in fi. fa.) a plantation to be cultivated by them for one year in farmer-like style, and they were to apply the net proceeds thereof to the payment of said debt, and that by reason of their gross mismanagement a small crop was made, and he thereby damaged to an amount greater than his debt, has a complete remedy in the provisions of sections 3699 and 3700 of the Revised Code, and he cannot resort to a Court of Equity for an injunction to prevent a levy or for the appointment of a receiver to take charge of the plantation, etc., and for relief on account of said grounds of defence, unless for special reasons shown; such as the insolvency, non-residence, etc., of his creditors. No such facts are alleged in this case.

Judgment affirmed.

Lyon & Irvin, & W. Whitaker, C. T. Goode, for plaintiffs in error.

W. A. Hawkins, Hunt & Hawks, for defendants.

William P. Crawford and Samuel W. May, executors, vs Sarah E. Ward. Homestead, from Randolph.

TRIPPE, J.

1. On the trial of an appeal from the judgment of the Ordinary allowing two lots of land by their numbers and district, as a homestead, the proceedings showing the number of acres, and the issue is, whether the homestead set apart by the Ordinary is not in value greater than two thousand dollars in specie, and in the evidence the value is given by the witnesses at certain rates per acre—the jury may find by their verdict in favor of the homestead as allowed by the Ordinary, if they believe from the testimony it does not exceed in value the constitutional limit.

And if from the evidence they believe it does exceed in value said limit, they may set down the number of acres, and specify how much and what part of the land shall be allowed as a homestead so that the same shall not be of greater value than two thousand dollars on a specie valuation.

2. The verdict in this case is not so strongly and decidedly against the weight of the evidence in reference to the value as to authorize it to be set aside, when the question was fully and distinctly submitted by the Court to the jury.

Judgment affirmed.

E. L. Douglass, H. Fielder, for plaintiff in error.

Hood and Kiddoo, C. B. Wooten, for defendant.

Editors Constitution: The ancient nation of Israel do not claim Governor Moses as a Jew. He was born of a Christian mother, his father professes no faith, and he has for some years been a vestryman in the Church of Christ. His wife, mother, and sister belong to Christian denominations. Let not the prejudice of the age saddle this stigma on the Hebrew race.

President Grant on Louisiana., Etc.

A Historical House Burned.

The Spanish Republic and Its Officers.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, February 25.—The President sent the following message to Congress to-day:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

Your attention is respectfully invited to the condition of affairs in the State of Louisiana. Grave complications have grown out of the election there on the 6th of November last, chiefly attributable, it is believed, to an organized attempt on the part of those controlling the election of officers and returns to defeat in that election the will of a majority of the electors of the State. Different persons are claiming the Executive office; two bodies claim to be the legislative assembly of the State, and the confusion and uncertainty produced in this way fall with paralyzing effect on all its interests. Controversy arose as to the election over its proceedings and results, but I declined to interfere until the suit involving this controversy to some extent was under, and by virtue of the act of May 3, 1870, entitled "an act to enforce the right of the citizens of the United States to vote in the several States of the Union and for ther purposes."

Finding that resistance was made to the judicial process in that suit, without any opportunity, and in my judgement without any right to review the judgment of the court upon the jurisdiction or other questions arising in the case, I directed the United States Marshal to enforce such process and to use, if necessary, troops for that purpose in accordance with the thirteenth section of said act, which provides that it shall be lawful for the President of the United States to employ such part of the land or naval forces of the United States or of the militia as shall be necessary to aid in the execution of the judicial process under this act.

Two bodies of persons claimed to be the Returning Board for the State, and the Circuit Court in that case decided that the one to which Lynch belonged, usually designated by his name, was the lawful Returning Boards, and this decision has been repeatedly affirmed by the District and the Supreme Courts of the State. Having no opportunity to canvass the votes and the exigences of the case demanding an immediate decision, I concede it to be my duty to recognize those persons as elected, who received and held their credentials to office, from what then appeared to me to be, and has since been decided by the Supreme Court of the State to be, the legal Returning Board. Conformably to the decisions of this Board, a full set of State officers has been installed, and legislative assembly organized, constituting, if not a de jure, at least a de facto, government, which, since some time in December last, has had possession of the offices and been exercising the usual powers of the government. But opposed to this has been another government claiming to control the affairs of the State, and which has to some extent been pro forma organized.

Recent investigation of the said election has developed so many frauds and forgeries as to make it doubtful what candidates received a majority of the votes actually cast, and in view of these facts, a variety of action has been proposed.

"I have no specific recommendation to make upon the subject, but if there is any practical way of removing the difficulties by legislation, then I earnestly request that such action be taken at the present session of Congress. It seems advisable that I should state now what course I shall feel bound to pursue in reference to the matter, in the event of no action by Congress at this time, subject to any satisfactory arrangement that may be made by the parties to the contest, which, of all things, is the most desirable. It will be my duty, so far as it may be necessary for me to act, to adhere to that government heretofore recognized by me; to judge of the election and qualifications of its members is the exclusive province of the Senate, and it is also the exclusive province of the House to judge of the election and qualifications of its members; but as to State offices filled and held under the State laws the decision of the State judicial tribunal, it seems to me, ought to be respected.

I am extremely anxious to avoid any appearance of undue interference in State affairs, and if Congress differs from me as to what ought to be done, I respectfully urge its immediate decision to that effect, otherwise, I shall feel obliged as far as I can, by the exercise of legitimate authority to put an end to this unhappy controversy which disturbs the peace and which prostrates the business of Louisiana, by the recognition and support of that government which is recognized and upheld by the courts of the State.

U. S. GRANT.

WASHINGTON, February 25.—Trumbull, Morton, Carpenter and Hill spoke on the Louisiana affairs to-day. Their speeches were echoes of their several reports.

The Agricultural College bill which gave an opportunity for the debate, went to a Committee of Conference.

The debate on the resolution expelling Messrs. Brooks and Ames, continues, and attracts an immense crowd. No action is expected to-night.

In the House the Credit Mobilier occupied the day with no action. The speeches were bitter, and the galleries packed.

It is understood in the Senate that Louisiana canvassers will not come up before the appropriation bill.

The President's message, in the House, was referred to the Judiciary Committee with the privilege of making their report at any time.

A bill for Louisiana may, by being attached to a report for or against the impeachment of Durrell, become a privileged question which will give it the control of matters. To a majority of the House there is no other machinery which will prevent one-third of the House from the saving of legislation regarding Louisiana.

FOREIGN ITEMS.

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

INDEX TO NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.—Mayson will sell a full line of furniture, pickles, etc., to-morrow.
A good large mule and one-horse wagon for sale.
Church carpets at Kendrick & Sons'.
Jackson's Magic Balsam, the master of pain.
See Douglass county Sheriff sales for April.
See Henry county Sheriff sales for April.

TO-DAY is the beginning of Lent.

MATRIMONY is assuming an epidemic form in Atlanta.

KENDRICK & SONS have church carpets, office mattings, etc.

FINE MULE.—Who wants a fine mule and one-horse wagon? See advertisement.

THOMPSON has unparralelled oysters and cooks them inimitably. He feeds everything else good.

REAL ESTATE SALE.—Messrs. Wallace & Fowler sold a lot on Butler street yesterday to Joseph Keith for $1,075.

MR. J. F. BURKE, of this city, will leave in a few days for the Grand Exposition of the World at Vienna.

MAYSON will sell to-morrow Pickles, Brandy Peaches, Sances, second hand furniture and household effects, etc; Don't lose a bargain.

NEW MUSIC.—"Sweet Sixteen," a charming waltz song, by Mrs. Westmoreland; 17 pages. Price $1. Messrs. Phillips & Crew will send, post-paid, on receipt of price.

THE repeal of the usury laws is having its effect. Already a company of Chicago brokers have moved to Atlanta and will soon open in the Kimball House, at the corner of Decatur and Pryor streets.

ASH-WEDNESDAY.—To-day is noted in the calendar as Ash-Wednesday. The lesson for to day is Joel 2nd chapter and 12 to 19th verses inclusive, Mathew, 6th chapter, 16th to 21st verse inclusive.

OUR friend Speights—one of the live editors of that live sheet—the Griffin News will soon leave for Louisville and Cincinnati. We trust Watterson and Halstead will put him through.

We learn that Gov. Smith on the 21st appointed Mr. John T. Brown, of Cuthbert, principal keeper of the penitentiary, vice W. B. Darnell, removed. It is due to Mr. Darnell to say that there were no charges against him. Mr. Brown is, we believe, a brother-in-law of Gov. Smith.

SMASH UP.—The breaking of an axle of a Greenline car at Rough and Ready yesterday morning caused a smash up of several freight cars on the Macon and Western Railroad, but no serious damage. Several cars loaded with stock were just in advance of the cars running off.

IT was rumored yesterday that the Governor had vetoed certain portions of the General Appropriation Act. We have no official information, however, on the subject. The sections reported to be vetoed, are one appropriating $10,000 for Printing Fund; $1,200 as salary of State Librarian, and $1,000 as salary of Principal Keeper of the Penitentiary.

LENTEN SERVICES.—During the season of Lent daily services will be held at St. Phillips Church at 4:30 P. M., and on Wednesdays and Fridays service at 11 A. M., with lecture Wednesday afternoons.
Service at 11 A. M. (sermon) and 4:30 P. M. to-day.
Holy Communion on the first Sunday in March and April as usual at 11 A. M. Every other Sunday in Lent celebration at 7:30 A. M.
Holy Week—Services every day at 11 A. M. and 7:30 P. M., with a brief account at the evening service of our blessed Lord's sayings and movements during the day commemorated.
Good Friday—Service at 11 A. M., with sermon, at 7:30 P. M., brief summing up of transactions of the day.
Easter.—Service with Holy Communion and sermon at 11 A. M. Sunday School Festival at 4:30 P. M. Easter Monday and Tuesday service at 11 A. M.

BIRCH, of the Newnan Dispatch, mourns because the young ladies of that town seem to be going crazy over widowers and old bachelors.
The young ladies may be fond of switches, but not of birch! Poor Birch is disconsolate, and wishes he were in Russia, where the women count more generally than the men. (Moore leaves Saturday.)
When a young woman falls in love with a man she is not in the least ashamed to go to his father's house and reveal her passion in the most tender and pathetic manner, and to promise the most submissive obedience if he will accept her as a wife. Should the insensible man pretend any excuse, she tells him she is resolved never to go out of the house till he gives his consent, and accordingly, taking up her lodgings, remains there. If he still obstinately refuses her, his case becomes exceedingly distressing. The church is commonly on her side, and to turn her out would provoke her kindred to revenge her honor, so that he has no method left but to betake himself to flight till he is otherwise disposed of.

DELAYED.—The passenger train on the Macon & Western Railroad due here at 1:45 P. M. yesterday, did not arrive until 6:20, P. M., in consequence of the engine giving out.

THE BALL AT CONCORDIA HALL.—Quite a number of ladies and gentleman were assembled last evening at Concordia Hall, in obedience to the invitation of Mr. B. Schwartz. In fact, a large portion of the elite and beauty of our German friends graced the occasion with their presence. The hall was tastefully prepared for the occasion, and the stage was occupied by Frier's Band, seven performers in all, and from thence they discoursed some of the sweetest music we have ever heard.
While the Ball was not crowned at any time during the evening, still there was an ample number of both ladies and gentlemen present to make the dancing a success. This was commenced (with a vim that showed the appreciation of all concerned, at about half past nine o'clock, and was kept up with undiminished interest, far into the night.
Supper was announced at about eleven o'clock, and the guests found on the table at the end of the Hall every delicacy they could desire, cakes and sweet things generally abounding. The whole entertainment was a success, and the guests finally departed for their several homes well satisfied with their evening's dissipation.

PATAULA CIRCUIT.

SUPREME COURT, Atlanta, February 25, After delivering the decisions in the cases heretofore argued the usual order of business was resumed.
No. 7. M. Johnston vs Jno R Jones et al, New trial, from Terrell, argued. Vason and Davis, represented by A Hood, P M Harper, represented by Clark and Goss, for plaintiff in error. C B Wooten, contra.
No. 8 Wm M Peeples vs Sidney Root. Dismissal of case, from Terrell, argued, P M Harper, represented by Clark and Goss, Lyon and Irvin, for plaintiff in error. C B Wooten, contra.
At the conclusion of the argument of the above stated case the Court adjourned until 10 o'clock A. M. to-morrow.

The United States Court.

The Clerk of this tribunal informs us that he is just now crowded with business preparing for the coming term. The District Court meets on next Monday, and, from present appearances, the coming session promises to be both long and important. The United States Circuit Court convenes on next Monday week.

The Court of Ordinary.

Nathan Sampson, a colored resident of our city, apparently about thirty-five years of age, was brought before Judge Pittman yesterday upon the complaint of his wife charging him with lunacy. The Court, after hearing the evidence, sustained the charge and sent him to jail. He will probably be removed to the State Lunatic Asylum in a few days.

The Justice's Court.

Justice Sampson had a case of simple assault before him yesterday. The defendant was one Andrew Shaw, a colored man, and he was arrested upon the affidavit of T. D. Lynes, upon whom he is charged with having committed the assault yesterday. He was required to give a bond of $50.
A case of assault and battery also came up before Justice H. W. Munday yesterday, for examination. The parties were all whites.
The prosecutor, Mr. Robert Powell, charges a boy of about fourteen years of age, named John McIntire, with having committed the offense upon his son, Robert Powell, Jr.
The fathers of the two boys, personally prosecuted and defended the case, which was quite a joke upon our lawyers, a large number of whom were present.
After much luminous discussion, the matter was settled by the prosecutor consenting to withdraw the warrant, and the defendant paying the costs.

Station House Report.

There were nine city arrests yesterday, all for misdemeanors except two, which two arrests were made yesterday morning, and the prisoners are charged with an exceedingly grave offense. On account of the social positions of the parties, and also on account of the doubt which as yet exists as to their guilt, we have consented to refrain from giving facts and names for the present.

U. S. Marshal's Sale.

UNDER AND BY VIRTUE OF A DECREE issued out of the Honorable, the Circuit Court of the United States, for the Northern District of Georgia, in favor of the plaintiff, Chas. N. Featherstone, Assignee, in the following case, to-wit:

Chas. N. Featherstone, Assignee, versus P. M. Sheibley and Davis Gammage,

I have levied upon, as the property of the said defendants, one certain tract of land known as the Harrison Farm, situated, lying and being in the 23d district, and 2d section, of originally Cherokee, now Floyd county, Georgia, being part of lots of land numbers 207 and 194, as described in a deed made to J. A. Stewart by J. R. Underwood, Trustee and Guardian for said Harrison orphans, containing two hundred and twenty-six acres, more or less.
Also, lot number 35 fronting on Hunter street and running back to Linden street, except a lot sold and conveyed on June 21, 1867, by Jesse B. Fleming, known as the Hunter property, in E ovah division of city of Rome, Georgia.
Also, city lot number Seventy-two (72) on Franklin street, Cass division of city of Rome, bounded by said last named street, Linden street, Lot number Seventy-three (73) and Lot number Seventy-two feet front, corner of Broad street and Maiden Lane, Cass division of the city of Rome, and extending back seventy-five feet to Maiden Lane, on which is situated, and the finishing a one and one-half story building, with one lot fronting on Maiden Lane street, and running back sixty-five feet, and with a front of fifty-seven feet, and will be sold at public auction, at the Court House, in the City of Atlanta, county of Fulton and State of Georgia, on the next, between the lawful hours of sale.

Dated at Atlanta, Georgia, February 1, 1873.

A PORTIONAL CURIOSITY.

The following lines are susceptible of two meanings. A bachelor friend reads the first and third, and second and fourth lines together, and seems to find an internal satisfaction in reading them thus, from some cause or other:

The man must lead a happy life
Who is directed by his wife;
Who's freed from matrimonial chains,
Is sure to suffer for his pains.

Adam of old co'd find no peace,
Until he saw a woman's face;
When Eve was given for a mate,
Adam was in a happy state.

In all the female hearts appear
Truth, darling of a heart sincere;
Hypocrisy, deceits and pride,
Never known in woman to reside.

What tongue is able to unfold
The world in woman we behold?
The falsehoods that in woman dwell
Is almost imperceptible.

Fooled be the foolish man, I say,
Who will not yield to woman's sway,
Who changes from his singleness,
Is sure of perfect blessedness.

OLD-TIME BEAUTIES.

Ancient and Modern Women—Something about their Fascinations and Surroundings.

Pleasant Treatment of a Pleasant Theme—Classic Names and Familiar Names

Hypatia, the Greek philosopher and religious martyr, Zenobia, the beautiful but unfortunate Palmyrian Queen, and Aspasia, the companion and competitor of Pericles, and of whom Madame de Staël says: "She is a model of female loveliness, an Alexander of heroism," are scarcely prototypes of any of the women of more modern times. Yet the history of the last and present centuries furnishes many instances of notable women who have made their influences felt in the affairs of their time. The character of that influence, and to what end, are not always apparent, but the fact and the magnitude are undoubted.

Mme. de Pompadour probably furnishes the most notable example that can be found in any age or country of what an education intended merely for show, in conjunction with woman's tact, can accomplish. Of obscure parentage, she was adopted and educated by a rich financier, and married her cousin, Le Normay l'Etiolés, who was said to be a man of whom any woman might be proud, and who loved her devotedly. She, however, left her husband to enjoy the royal favor of Louis XV, who made her the Marquis de Pompadour, she became the close friend and political adviser of the King; the undoubted Premier of France—appointing ministers, ambassadors, generals, and maintaining correspondence with foreign courts.

The royal council convened in her boudoir. Maria Theresa, for political ends, addressed her as "ma cousine." Her extravagance knew no limit; she lightened the king's treasury during her short reign over $150,000,000. She died about 45, at the zenith of her power. This woman acquired and held her influence by sheer force of what might be called surface fascination, her education having been of the ornamental type, expressly confined to music, elocution and drawing. She possessed great beauty of face and figure, and cultivated dress as a fine art. In temperament cold, heartless and ambitious, every grace of face and person was made subservient to some selfish purpose. Her chief power undoubtedly lay in the skillful handling of her forces to meet the demands of the vacillating king.

Among the women famous for beauty, wit and want of modesty in the time of Louis XIV, Ninon de l'Enclos was the most notorious. Though openly depraved, she was not entirely excluded from the higher ranks of society. The young son of Madame de Sevigne was said to have been as enamored of Ninon when she was fifty-four years old as was his father in his youth. She is said to have preserved her beauty and appearance of youth to the last.

Madame de Staël was one of the French who did not rule society or fascinate by her beauty or vices. She amused herself at the early age of eleven by writing comedies and tragedies. She was the first leader of society both during and after the Empire. Her fine mind, popularity as an authoress and unwillingness to join his party incurred Napoleon's hatred, and he never ceased in his persecutions of her so long as he had the power to annoy.

Banished from Paris by order of the Emperor, she was an exile for ten years, and friends who visited her were exiled. The last four years of her life were the most brilliant of her career. The Restorationists hailed with eagerness the return of the talented daughter of the Minister of the last of the Bourbons; the newspapers were delighted to have a few words from the author of "Corinne." Her rooms were thronged with the representatives of political and literary liberty of the day. Wellington, Chateaubriand, Lafayette, Blucher, came to her as to the center of political movement. Canova represented art, and Madame Recamier—still radiant at six and thirty—beauty. Hers was the reign of intellect.

Madame Recamier was the greatest beauty in France during the Empire. Among the earliest tributes to her beauty were those of the two Bonapartes—the Emperor and his brother Lucien. The first eight years of the present century were the period of Madame Recamier's reign as a social sovereign. Refusing to become a member of the Emperor's household, and becoming a too attractive feature in the Paris salons, she was also banished. Canova, the great sculptor, once attempted to give her a pleasant surprise by displaying two busts secretly modeled after her likeness; but the beautiful work of Canova was not good enough for the vain Frenchwoman, and she could not conceal her chagrin even before the great artist. Madame Recamier was not a woman of profound mind. She was a great flirt, and she lived to enjoy life. But her society was composed as much of literary and political celebrities as of the merely fashionable people of Paris.

The probable secret of her later success, socially, lay as much in that charm of manner, and perfect ease and grace in conversation, naturally acquired in five and twenty years of continued good society as in her beauty. Another element of her influence was that apparent sympathy for the opinions and feelings of others which led her to treat everyone as if they were of the utmost importance; a manner which brought her many friends, even among men and women vastly superior to her in intellect. It is a curious fact in the history of the first that the older she grew the more devoted became her admirers. Chateaubriand, verging on 80, infirm, tottering, and with one foot in the grave, offered Madame Recamier his hand, and she nearly 70 and wholly blind, had the good sense to refuse him. She died of cholera in 1849.

Montagu House, London, is one of the landmarks of modern society. To Mrs. Montagu's entertainments crowded the scholar and the politician, the wit, the critic, the orator. It was at the meetings of the literati at this house that the sobriquet "blue stocking," so long applied to literary women, originated. It arose from a remark upon the stockings of Dr. Stillingfleet—that learned divine being an oddity and a clown. A foreigner present cried: "Les bas bleus," and the society was afterward known as the Blue Stockings, denoting that the full dress then in the evening was to be dispensed with. No English woman has ever completely succeeded in deceiving men and women from the trivialities of society to the disquisition of literature and science as did Mrs. Montagu. She was clever as a writer. Her essay on Shakspeare was pronounced by Beattie the most elegant piece of criticism in our language or any other. Mrs. Montagu was the Madame du Deffand, of London. And her fame as the queen of society rested not only on her intellect, her essays, her conversational talent, but also on the solid basis of being the best dinner giver in London.

Sidney Lady Morgan was born on shipboard between Ireland and England. Her father was an actor, a singer, and the manager of a theatre. Such was the origin of one whose life presents an imitation of what unassisted women can do to raise themselves as high as they choose in the scale of society—upon even a slender stock of education—with energy and talent. She wrote Irish novels, and wrote for the periodicals. She used to relate how accidental she was whom for some tale, the editor sent her two guineas, her first earned money. These two guineas, she said, were the source of all her success. She learned the art of society in Paris, and she never forgot it. Born and raised, learning first her letters, probably from a play-bill, she lived to 82, to figure in the most elegant neighborhood of London, among the most intellectual society in the world. She had a fund of Irish drollery, which was never quenched till the death of her husband. She died in 1859, and with her ended those few remaining literary cliques, the like of which—as Leigh Hunt in—we of the present age are not to know except as matters of history.

That the American women have not been taught "oil for six lessons"—as they do in France; that they have not made an art of conversation; have not held those brilliant coteries whose witty scintillations have gone forth to astonish the world is owing to the fact that American society came in just as that fashion was going out. But that there have been many "queens" of our society no one can doubt, the sway of beauty and fashion being essentially loyal.

The wife of John Adams, our second President, spent her early years in England and France, and, as Mr. Adam's wife, gracefully performed her part in the higher circles of social and political life, both before and after her husband became President.

Mrs. Hancock, wife of John Hancock, Governor of Massachusetts, and afterwards President of the first Congress, was acknowledged to possess wonderful beauty. She was thoroughly high-bred, had a courtly manner, and fine conversational powers. She was for years considered one of the "wonders of the age," and was visited until the close of her life by distinguished persons from foreign countries, as well as of her own.

Mrs. J. J. Roosevelt was a leader of society in New York for a long time. She had had the advantage of the best society abroad when quite a young lady, and was married in Paris in 1831, in the presence of many distinguished friends, among them General Lafayette, who gave the bride away.

In later days Mrs. Jesse Fremont was our most noted conversationalist. Her early experience with her father, in Washington society, her extensive travels with her husband over every part of her own country, and her great natural talents and vivid imagination make her conversation particularly spirited and brilliant. Her talk always sparkles with lively wit and picturesque illustration, and appears wholly unstudied.

Mrs. Harrison Gray Otis was the "noblest Roman of them all." Her conspicuous and unflagging patriotism during the rebellion, made her name more pleasantly familiar to us than of any other living woman. It was many years ago that she established those delightful little tea and cake Saturday morning receptions and Thursday evening soirees at her house in Boston. Many noted people—dear to us through their works—were proud to call Mrs. Otis their friend, and to enjoy the quiet, elegant hospitalities of her modest little house on the corner of Joy and Mount Vernon streets.

DON'T

Be Deceived, but for coughs, colds, sore throat, hoarseness and bronchial difficulties, use only

WELLS' CARBOLIC TABLETS.

Worthless imitations are on the market, but the only Scientific preparation of Carbolic Acid for Lung diseases is when chemically combined with other well known remedies, as these TABLETS, and all parties are cautioned against using any other.

In all cases of irritation of the mucous membrane those Tablets should be freely used, their cleansing and healing properties are astonishing.

Be warned; being neglected a cold, it is easily cured in its incipient state, when it becomes chronic the cure is exceedingly difficult, use Wells' Carbolic as a specific.

is unequaled by any known remedy. It will eradicate, extirpate and thoroughly destroy all poisonous substances in the Blood and will effectually dispel all predisposition to these derangements.

Is there want of action in your Liver and Spleen? Unless relieved at once the blood becomes impure by deleterious secretions, producing scrofulous or skin diseases, Blotches, Felons, Pustules, Canker, Pimples, etc.

Have you a Dyspeptic Stomach? Unless digestion is promptly aided the system is debilitated with loss of vital force, poverty of the blood, dropsical tendency, general weakness and inertia.

Have you a weakness of the Intestines? You are in danger of Chronic Diarrhœa or the dreadful inflammation of the Bowels.

Have you weakness of the Uterine or Urinary Organs? You are exposed to suffering in its most aggravated form.

Are you dejected, drowsy, dull, sluggish or depressed in spirits, with head ache, back ache, coated tongue and bad tasting mouth?

For a certain remedy for all these diseases, weaknesses and troubles; for cleansing and purifying the vitiated blood and imparting vigor to all the vital forces; for building up and restoring the weakened constitution USE which is pronounced by the leading medical authorities of London and Paris "the most powerful tonic and alterative known to the medical world." This is no new and untried discovery but has been long used by the leading physicians of other countries with wonderful remedial results.

Don't weaken or impair the digestive organs by cathartics and physics, they give only temporary relief—Indigestion, flatulency and dyspepsia with piles and kindred diseases are sure to follow their use.

Keep the blood pure and health is assured.
